Preparing 'Christmas Bundles' for Britain

Christmas boxes containing a variety of articles ranging from toys to toothbrushes are now being packed by the boys and girls of Richland county's Junior Red Cross for shipment to the children in Britain. Approximately 350 items purchased by Junior Red Cross funds went into the boxes as Junior members devoted after-school hours to their project. A group of workers is shown above sorting items for the 35 boxes. Pictured from left to right are Marilyn Heuss, Janet Hahn and Harriett Lutz. In the lower picture Susan Stoodt, 77 West Parkwood boulevard, gives you an idea of how the boxes look after they are packed.

HINTS ACTION

FDR Indicates OPM May Take Hand In Defense Strikes.

HYDE PARK.—(AP)—President Roosevelt hinted today at direct intervention by the office of production management in extensive defense strikes with the statement that something may be expected soon from that defense agency.

The president, however, offered no indication of the nature of OPM action that might be in prospect. But he did say that he has been giving some thought to what was described as an increasing number of strikes in defense industries.

Without further questioning, he added immediately that he thought there would be something from OPM pretty soon on this subject of strikes. He could not say how soon, he continued, but felt that it would be forthcoming pretty soon.

Jobs Wait Amateur Imitator But Mailmen Can't Find Him

If Mansfield postal authorities cannot locate 14-year-old Buddy Lyons, of near Mansfield, who did a series of bird and animal imitations on Major Bowes' radio show two weeks ago in New York, a young career may be nipped in the bud.

For two weeks, ever since the network broadcast Oct. 2, mail has been delivered at the Mansfield post office marked simply "Buddy Lyons, Mansfield, Ohio," with one or two postal cards carrying offers of jobs.

Carriers on rural routes say that although the boy, apparently lives near Mansfield, they have been unable to locate him.

Postal authorities have been holding the letters for 10 days in the hope that they would be claimed, and they have asked a

Tokyo Papers Stress 'Gravity of Times'; Manila Hears of U. S. Shipping Order.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An authoritative source indicated today that all American merchant ships had been ordered out of Japanese and Chinese waters because of what the navy called "the situation in the Pacific."

(By Associated Press)
Japan today went under the military leadership of Lieut.-Gen. Eiichi Tojo, pro-Axis former war minister, chosen as premier to succeed Prince Fumimaro Konoye amid a growing crisis in Japan's relations with Russia and the United States.

Japanese quarters in Tokyo said generals and admirals would probably predominate in the new cabinet, and newspapers warned the people of the extreme gravity of the times.

Simultaneously, unconfirmed rumors circulated in Manila that all American ships in the Pacific had been ordered to leave the high seas.

A Manila shipping executive said the Panama freighter, Perida, operated by the U. S. maritime commission, had been ordered by the U. S. navy to return to Manila after sailing for the United States this morning.

Other ships were said to have been instructed to proceed immediately to the nearest American or British port.

"A fundamental disagreement exists between Japan and the United States," said the Tokyo newspaper, Nichi Nichi. "Japan is facing a rise or fall and a difficult time never paralleled in history."

In Washington, Capitol Hill took an increasingly serious view of the Konoye cabinet overthrow, and congressional leaders expressed the view that a new threat was brewing for American and British interests in the Pacific.

Names of all the injured were not immediately available, but the army announcement said two of the five—all reported to have escaped serious injury—were Donald Persall and Joseph Burnella of Lowell, Mass.

HOUSE VOTES TODAY ON SHIP ARMING BILL

Democratic Leaders Predict Passage of Measure Late This Afternoon.

BITTER DEBATE RAGES

Legislators Argue Over U. S. Sending Second A. E. F. To Europe.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Rep. Plimley (R., Vt.) told the house today that the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny demonstrated that the United States was confronted with a "world conspiracy of the basest, foulest criminals" which made the administration's proposal to arm merchant ships "a trivial item."

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON.—The house today neared a final vote on the bill repealing the neutrality act ban on arming of merchant ships, with a bitter debate over sending of a second A. E. F. to Europe dominating the closing stages of the battle.

Democratic leaders predicted passage of the measure by late afternoon with a majority of from 100 to 150 which they said, may be swelled by rising concern over Germany's march into Russia and the collapse of the Japanese cabinet.

Effect of a speech by Rep. Marcantonio (A.-L., N. Y., urging that the United States send a A. E. F. to open up a western front in France as aid to the Soviet Union in its desperate struggle was debated.

The speech evoked demands from opponents of the ship arms bill that administration leaders say definitely whether they favor sending American troops into battle against Hitler's legions.

Marcantonio, who was the lone member of congress voting against bills carrying the first billions for national defense, declared that the character of the war changed when Germany invaded Russia. This, he said, changed it from an imperialistic war to one of national defense for the United States.

If Hitler dominates Russia he will be "within row-boat distance of Alaska" and if he dominates Japan he will have gone far in his fight for world conquest, the New Yorker said.

CHICAGO.—To the strains of Tchaikovsky's Concerto in B Flat Minor, a five-pound, two ounce boy was delivered by caesarian section today to a 100-pound mother, who hummed a happy accompaniment.

Mrs. Pauline Siegal had only a local aesthetic but the music, which came to her by frequency modulation radio through special ear plugs, so distracted her, she reported afterward, that she felt very little pain.

Doctors and technicians who performed in the first musical birth in medical annals said the results would be studied but it was evident that the music had "created a distraction."

Belief Expressed That Attack Came From German Sub; Washington Says Vessel Able to Proceed to Port; Raid In Defense Zone, FDR Says.

BULLETIN
BERLIN.—(UP)—A German spokesman said today that he had no information of the torpedoing of the U. S. Destroyer Kearny and that no German reports on the matter have been received thus far.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON.—(UP)—The $5,000,000 U. S. S. Kearny, one of the United States navy's newest destroyers, was damaged by a torpedo today in the first successful attack on an American naval ship in the Atlantic since the European war started.

The attack, according to the navy department's brief announcement, occurred 350 miles south and west of American-defended Iceland. The preliminary navy dispatches indicated that there were no casualties among the crew.

At the time of the attack the Kearny was on patrol duty, carrying out its assignment in the North Atlantic patrol which is under President Roosevelt's order to shoot Axis submarines, warplanes or surface raiders on sight in American defensive waters. The sea lanes to Iceland are considered American defensive waters.

The navy did not identify the attacker, but officials believed it undoubtedly was a German submarine. On Sept. 4 a German submarine attacked the U. S. S. Greer with torpedoes in the same general area, but missed.

Despite damage, the navy said, the Kearny was able to proceed under her own power. It was not indicated whether she would seek the shelter of harbor in Iceland, or Greenland, or would cross the North Atlantic to a base in this country or Canada.

The Kearny is a 1,630-ton vessel under command of Lieut. Com. A. D. Danis. She was completed in 1940 and is armed with standard five-inch guns and torpedo tubes customary for a destroyer of her class.

Pranksters Face 'Woodshed Cure,' Parents Pay Loss

Halloween pranksters continued to give Mansfield and Richland county authorities a merry chase last night but three youths were caught after they had broken windows in the home of a First avenue resident.

Police said that the parents of the trio had been contacted and that they had agreed to pay the damages and "to make good use of the woodshed."

A McPherson avenue housewife complained that Halloween celebrants were stealing milk from her front porch every night. Police searched the neighborhood but were unable to find the offenders.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates warned that parents will be expected to pay for all damage caused by their children and that if serious damage is caused the children may be prosecuted.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson issued a similar warning Wednesday after his deputies had found obstructions placed on several county highways and had reports of garbage and overripe fruit being dumped on porches and smeared on buildings.

SHOWERS DUE

Cloudy Skies Expected To Bring Light Rainfall.

Mansfield's cloudy morning skies were expected to bring occasional light rain and slightly warmer weather tonight and tomorrow, according to the weatherman.

A light frost expected last night failed to materialize but thermometers sank to 37 degrees. High mark for the mercury yesterday was only 63 degrees. Average temperature for the day was 50, three degrees lower than the 16-year average.

The sun was blotted out this morning with heavy clouds which kept the temperature below 50 before noon. At noon the mercury had reached 54. No precipitation was recorded yesterday.

A PAINLESS WAY TO SAVE MONEY

Buying a home is about the easiest way there is to accumulate wealth. It doesn't entail self-denial because under today's long-term, low interest purchase plans, the monthly payments, including interest, taxes, and insurance, are little, if any more than rent.

You will find this to be true if you will investigate some of the attractive home bargains advertised in the special real estate ads on today's News-Journal classified pages.

Carriers on rural routes say that although the boy, apparently lives near Mansfield, they have been unable to locate him.

Postal authorities have been holding the letters for 10 days in the hope that they would be claimed, and they have asked a number of people to aid them in finding the boy.

If his mail lies unclaimed at the post office much longer it will have to be returned to the sender, or sent to the dead letter office in Washington, D. C., they said.

Lyons had won local recognition with his whistling bird imitations, and his impersonations of various animals, and had appeared at clubs and parties before his broadcast.

Local listeners reported that quite a few telephone votes were cast for the Mansfield boy.

At the Mansfield postoffice, clerks said that the "fan mail" received here, had been sent directly from admirers, and had not been routed through Major Bowes' office in New York.

marine by a British patrol plane, followed the submarine. During the course of this observation the submarine fired two torpedoes and the Greer counter-attacked with depth bombs. Although the action occurred over a period of hours neither warship was hit.

At the time of the Greer incident, ships of the U. S. Atlantic patrol were under orders just to report the presence of Axis warships which they encountered, and not to attack unless they were attacked first.

But on Sept. 11 President Roosevelt directed the navy to shoot on sight all Axis warships or planes found in American defensive waters. So far as has been revealed, today's attack on the Kearny was the first engagement in which an American warship has been involved since those orders were issued.

The German government has declared the area around Iceland and as far west as the shores of Greenland a war zone where vessels of any description are subject to destruction. The United States does not recognize this zone.

The first naval report did not state the extent of the damage to the Kearny. Officials said that they expected further details later today.

It was pointed out that the torpedoing occurred only this morning, and there has been little time for the commander of the destroyer to make a full report. He is expected, however, to give a complete account to his superiors just as soon as feasible.

Since the American Atlantic patrol was given orders to shoot on sight there has been a marked decline in German sinkings in the North Atlantic according to both United States and British authorities. American merchantmen as well as those of other friendly nations, are being conveyed by American patrols as far as Iceland. From that island, ships enroute to Britain would have to be conveyed by the Royal navy, which is enabled by the shortened line to concentrate more warships for this duty.

Although the Kearny was the first United States warship to be damaged by hostile action in the Atlantic since the war started, American-owned merchant ships have been sunk in the waters between Greenland and Iceland. The three ships were sailing under the Panamanian flag. They were the S. S. Sessa, on Aug. 17, the S. S. Montana, on Sept. 11, and the Pink Star, on Sept. 19. The Pink Star sinking occurred after Mr. Roosevelt issued his "shoot-on-sight" orders.

The text of the navy's announcement follows:

"The navy department announced that the U. S. S. Kearny, destroyer, was torpedoed this morning while on patrol duty about 350 miles south and west of Iceland.

"No casualties to personnel was indicated in dispatches received by the navy department.

"Despite the damage received, the ship is able to proceed under her own power.

"The U. S. S. Kearny is under command of Lieut. Com. A. L. Danis, U. S. navy.

"The ship is one of the navy's newest destroyers. She was laid down in 1938 and completed in 1940. This ship has a standard displacement of 1,630 tons. The ship is 341 feet long and has a 35-foot beam. She is armed with the standard 5-inch battery of her class.

"No other details are available to the navy department at this time."

This was the first American warship to be hit while on Atlantic patrol duty in this war.

On Sept. 4, the U. S. S. Greer, another destroyer, was fired upon by a submarine twice. All of the torpedoes missed. The Greer counter-attacked with depth bombs, but apparently unsuccessfully.

The navy's announcement did not state the port toward which the Kearny is proceeding, nor did it indicate whether she required assistance. The Kearny was hit not far from the area in which the Greer episode occurred.

Danis, skipper of the injured craft, is a native of Washington, D. C.

Roosevelt Adopts 'Firm Hand' Policy

HYDE PARK — (AP) — As a showdown with Japan over policy in the Far East appeared imminent, President Roosevelt returned to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home for the week-end after having apparently instructed Secretary of State Hull to adopt a firm and unrelenting attitude in future dealings with Tokyo.

A private telephone wire to Washington kept the president abreast of the delicate situation which is shaping up into an ugly Pacific crisis. Shortly before leaving the National Capital, Mr. Roosevelt conferred for two hours with Hull, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and lend-lease generalissimo Harry Hopkins.

Only comment from any member of the U. S. war council was the terse statement of Hull that he expected further meetings of this group "right along" in the the destroyer Greer was unsuccessfully attacked, he ordered the Atlantic patrol to hunt down the marauding submarine and dispose of it if possible.

Within three minutes after his arrival at his Hyde Park home this morning, President Roosevelt received an urgent long distance call from Secretary of the Navy Knox, who advised him that the Kearny, one of the nation's newest destroyers, had been torpedoed about 350 miles south and west of Iceland.

Information supplied the president by Knox conformed to early press dispatches.

The president said he understood the ship was proceeding to port under its own power.

He said he had inquired of Knox whether there were any casualties but the navy secretary at that moment was without details.

The president received newspaper men in his Hyde Park study shortly after word of the Kearny's encounter came through.

A reporter asked the president if he considered this incident another act of piracy which warranted special orders to the navy to hunt down the marauder.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that regular navy orders prevailed.

He said he preferred that the navy department in Washington give out further information for the time being.

In addition to his conversation with Knox, the president also talked to Secretary of State Hull, presumably receiving latest reports on the Far East crisis which threatens to force a showdown between the United States and Japan.

The chief executive was most uncommunicative on the subject of negotiations with Japan, however. Question after question was met with the terse reply that no news was available.

He declined even to state whether or not he had been advised that General Eiichi Tojo, Japanese war minister, had been asked to form a new cabinet in Tokyo.

light of latest international developments.

President Roosevelt tentatively scheduled a press conference in his Hyde Park study late this forenoon, from which may come some response to the increasingly belligerent attitude Japan is manifesting.

Lady Luck Rides With Destroyer Skipper

NEW YORK — (AP) — Lady luck was riding the bridge with Lieut. Commander Anthony Lee Danis when the destroyer Kearny was torpedoed, just as she has always ridden with him, it appeared today.

Danis, a native of Washington, D. C., whose home now is in Brooklyn, has had three narrow squeaks previous to the attack on the destroyer he commands.

In 1923 he was transferred from sea duty to the dirigible Shenandoah but because of a delay in the arrival of the transfer he was not aboard when she crashed on Sept. 3 of that year.

In 1933 he was a staff officer of the dirigible Akron. Again he was transferred and just two weeks later on April 4, the Akron was overtaken by disaster.

On Feb. 12, 1935, Danis was aboard the dirigible Macon when she crashed and came through with only slight injuries.

FIFTEEN COMPLETE TRAINING AS RED CROSS FIRST AID TEACHERS

Fifteen Richland county Red Cross first aid instructors have completed a 30-hour instructors' training course today and are now eligible to certification from both county and national organizations authorizing them to teach seven first aid training courses in the county.

This is the first instructors' class held by the county chapter since delegation of authority by the national chapter made it possible for Richland county to hold its own instructors' course instead of relying upon a national Red Cross representative. Bernard C. Hardy, county first aid and water safety director of the chapter, conducted the classes.

The instructors are now eligible to teach the standard 20-hour Civilian Defense course, advanced 10-hour course, nine-hour home accident prevention course, and 12-hour combined home and farm accident course in addition to three courses they have taught in the past. The latter include junior, standard and advanced courses.

Harry Grady, general field representative for the Red Cross, addressed the group last night at the Ohio Brass assembly rooms where classes have been held twice a week, and expressed appreciation of the instructors' cooperation.

Instructors eligible for certification are: Mrs. W. J. Bishop, Junior Red Cross chairman; Miss Lenore Van Gundy, executive secretary; Mrs. L. N. Bryant, Mrs. Zova Weimer, Miss Ava Pettit, Miss Edith West, Allen Bond, Paul English, Joseph T. Geiger, Loyal W. Hartman, Melvin Warner, T. Arthur White, James Barnes, Allan Ryan of Mansfield and Mrs. Marjorie Ehret of Plymouth.

The purchasers were Miss Erma Manizer, Hedges school, chairman; Miss Mary Henry, Woodland school, and Miss Ruth Robbins, private kindergarten.

Red Cross student representatives of six schools have participated in the packing so far and five other schools will assist tonight when the work is scheduled for completion.

Schools assisting today included Bushnell, Bowman, Carpenter, Prospect and Woodland. Others that participated were Brinkerhoff, Hedges, Newman, West Fifth, Western and Country Day school.

Board 3 qualified, and he was a transfer from another board outside the county.

Board clerks said defective teeth and vision and hernia were major reasons for rejections in the group examined yesterday. Because of the poor showing of registrants in the tests, it may be necessary to conduct one or two more examinations in the county before the revised examination plan goes into effect Nov. 1, it was said.

After the first of next month all registrants will be examined at the Fort Hayes induction station, eliminating the tests here.

Clerk Charles Kirkwood of Board 3 said failure of its group of registrants to qualify yesterday left the board "hard up for men" to fill the November quota of 21 men. The same board also has had trouble getting enough qualified selectees to supply its heavy October quota.

Clerks pointed out that dropping men past 28 from their eligible lists and the poor showing of registrants in physical examinations is making it more difficult to get sufficient youths for the quotas.

relations committee, declared the change "makes the chances of a peaceful settlement of our differences with Japan very meager, indeed."

Konoye's ouster followed within two months after he initiated secret negotiations in Washington to ease strained relations between the United States and Japan.

The new premier, 56-year-old Gen. Tojo, has been an open admirer of German military methods ever since he served as an attaché in Berlin in 1918, and as long ago as 1937 he declared: "Japan must be prepared to fight China and Russia simultaneously."

Japanese newspapers, stressing the emergency in Washington-Tokyo relations, asserted that the United States would be responsible if the worst happened.

Nichi Nichi quoted Admiral Takahashi, former commander in chief of the Japanese navy, as saying Japan would not retreat.

The newspaper said Takahashi gave it as his opinion that Japanese naval strength might be under that of a certain nation—unspecified—but that "Japan will not give a single step."

On the Russo-German war front, the titanic battle for Moscow raged into its 16th day with undiminished fury.

Soviet dispatches reported that stubbornly fighting Red army troops had broken two German spearheads thrust into the key sectors of Viazma, 125 miles west of Moscow, and Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of the Russian capital.

While conceding that the danger was still extreme, the Russians nevertheless declared that the German onslaught on the approaches of Moscow had been slowed as Soviet defense armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko massed in front of the capital for a last-ditch stand.

Berlin reports said that Nazi troops slashing at Moscow's outer defenses—only 60 miles away at some points—had captured an important industrial section south of the U. S. S. R. capital and seized a power station which supplied the Moscow industrial region.

Authoritative quarters in London said the British military mission in Moscow was "on the move," and members of the Soviet government itself were reported moving to the interior city of Kagan, 450 miles east of Moscow.

A mid-day Red army bulletin reported no new gains for the Nazi invaders, noting merely that the 61-day-old struggle before Moscow was particularly fierce, with vast destruction of men and machines on both sides.

Adolf Hitler's high command reported that Nazi warplanes in attacks on Soviet troopships fleeing Odessa, Russia's Black Sea port, had sunk or damaged 14 ships and that the pursuit of "the heaviest foe" was continuing between the Sea of Azov and the Donets river.

German dive-bombers splattered Odessa's harbor with a hail of explosives as Soviet transports attempted to rescue trapped Red army troops from the burning city, the Nazis said.

Hitler's high command said German-Allied Rumanian troops captured Odessa yesterday, but the BBC quoted the Moscow radio as saying that Axis forces striking at the city had been "checked and forced to dig in," suffering heavy losses.

In Bucharest, Rumanian crowds celebrated reports of Odessa's fall after a 59-day siege. Rumanian front-line dispatches said between 15 and 17 Russian divisions—approximately 225,000 to 255,000 troops—had been trapped in Odessa, and asserted that the Russians had set fire to all oil tanks in the city before abandoning it. Leningrad apparently was still in a state of static siege.

There have been repeated demands in Britain for an invasion of the continent to help Russia. The government has indicated it thought such a move at present was not wise and sections of the British press found more ammunition against the invasionists in the official report of Lord Gort, commander of the British expeditionary force which the Germans pushed off the continent in 1940.

Lord Gort, in the report published today, told of shortages of equipment and failure of coordination among the Allied armies.

The London Daily Telegraph said editorially that the "supreme lesson for today" from the Gort dispatches "is the folly of sending inadequately trained expeditions beyond these shores."

The Daily Express in London said the report "ought to be enough to stop the invasionists x x x. Brave men must never be sacrificed again by being sent to war without proper weapons."

A. E. F., Rep. Patrick (D.), Ala., recently told the house that "perhaps what we should do is to declare war on Germany."

"I demand that those high officials who are pledging us to the defeat of Hitler say how it will be done," said Rep. Curtis (R.), Neb. "There's only one army in the world that can do it, and if those who say that Hitler must be crushed are fair to the American people they will advocate sending an A. E. F. to Europe."

Democratic leaders, who contended that the ship arms bill is merely one for the purpose of American seamen against piratical submarines, for the most part ignored the discussion over a second A. E. F.

Foes of the bill conceded defeat, but hoped to roll up a big profit vote on a motion to recommit the bill to the foreign affairs committee for further hearings.

Republican leaders estimated that 40 Republicans will support the bill, while Democratic leaders said they would lose less than 50 of their members on the final vote.

ing, a nurse bent closer to ascertain if she was in pain. To her surprise she discovered the mother was humming to the music.

"I'm glad we had the music," Mrs. Siegal said later. "It gave me a great deal of pleasure and there was not so much pain."

"We cannot make any positive deductions," Keeler said, "but we are sure that the music created a distraction."

He said it was possible that the experiment might lead hospitals to install FM phonographs in their operating rooms.

relations committee, declared the change "makes the chances of a peaceful settlement of our differences with Japan very meager, indeed."

Konoye's ouster followed within two months after he initiated secret negotiations in Washington to ease strained relations between the United States and Japan.

The new premier, 56-year-old Gen. Tojo, has been an open admirer of German military methods ever since he served as an attaché in Berlin in 1918, and as long ago as 1937 he declared: "Japan must be prepared to fight China and Russia simultaneously."

Japanese newspapers, stressing the emergency in Washington-Tokyo relations, asserted that the United States would be responsible if the worst happened.

Nichi Nichi quoted Admiral Takahashi, former commander in chief of the Japanese navy, as saying Japan would not retreat.

The newspaper said Takahashi gave it as his opinion that Japanese naval strength might be under that of a certain nation—unspecified—but that "Japan will not give a single step."

On the Russo-German war front, the titanic battle for Moscow raged into its 16th day with undiminished fury.

Soviet dispatches reported that stubbornly fighting Red army troops had broken two German spearheads thrust into the key sectors of Viazma, 125 miles west of Moscow, and Kalinin, 95 miles northwest of the Russian capital.

While conceding that the danger was still extreme, the Russians nevertheless declared that the German onslaught on the approaches of Moscow had been slowed as Soviet defense armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko massed in front of the capital for a last-ditch stand.

Berlin reports said that Nazi troops slashing at Moscow's outer defenses—only 60 miles away at some points—had captured an important industrial section south of the U. S. S. R. capital and seized a power station which supplied the Moscow industrial region.

Authoritative quarters in London said the British military mission in Moscow was "on the move," and members of the Soviet government itself were reported moving to the interior city of Kagan, 450 miles east of Moscow.

A mid-day Red army bulletin reported no new gains for the Nazi invaders, noting merely that the 61-day-old struggle before Moscow was particularly fierce, with vast destruction of men and machines on both sides.

Adolf Hitler's high command reported that Nazi warplanes in attacks on Soviet troopships fleeing Odessa, Russia's Black Sea port, had sunk or damaged 14 ships and that the pursuit of "the heaviest foe" was continuing between the Sea of Azov and the Donets river.

German dive-bombers splattered Odessa's harbor with a hail of explosives as Soviet transports attempted to rescue trapped Red army troops from the burning city, the Nazis said.

Hitler's high command said German-Allied Rumanian troops captured Odessa yesterday, but the BBC quoted the Moscow radio as saying that Axis forces striking at the city had been "checked and forced to dig in," suffering heavy losses.

In Bucharest, Rumanian crowds celebrated reports of Odessa's fall after a 59-day siege. Rumanian front-line dispatches said between 15 and 17 Russian divisions—approximately 225,000 to 255,000 troops—had been trapped in Odessa, and asserted that the Russians had set fire to all oil tanks in the city before abandoning it. Leningrad apparently was still in a state of static siege.

There have been repeated demands in Britain for an invasion of the continent to help Russia. The government has indicated it thought such a move at present was not wise and sections of the British press found more ammunition against the invasionists in the official report of Lord Gort, commander of the British expeditionary force which the Germans pushed off the continent in 1940.

Lord Gort, in the report published today, told of shortages of equipment and failure of coordination among the Allied armies.

The London Daily Telegraph said editorially that the "supreme lesson for today" from the Gort dispatches "is the folly of sending inadequately trained expeditions beyond these shores."

The Daily Express in London said the report "ought to be enough to stop the invasionists x x x. Brave men must never be sacrificed again by being sent to war without proper weapons."

SHIP SUNK
BERLIN — (AP) — German bombers during the night sank a 7,000-ton merchant vessel off the east coast of Britain, sent another 1,500-ton vessel to the bottom off the west coast and bombed port facilities on the southeast coast. German authorities announced today.

A communiqué said British bombers dropped a number of high explosives and incendiaries on western Germany, but caused only insignificant damage.

RICHMAN BROTHERS POLICY

WE'VE been making clothes for 62 years. We've seen good times and bad times. Always, we've sincerely tried to play fair.

In World War No. 1 we resisted price advances as long as possible. We are following the same policy in World War No. 2. We did not raise our prices this Fall, for it's Richman policy not to do so until it can no longer be avoided.

Now, we are not magicians, nor do we claim to be philanthropists. These are difficult and dangerous times. Everything that goes into the cost of clothing is at the highest level in many years—and still advancing—and if we are to continue to maintain our standards of quality, we, too, eventually (but not this season) will be forced to adjust our prices.

Please do not anticipate your future clothing requirements. You and we, and the country as a whole, will best be served by avoiding speculation—and buying only what we need, when we need it.

But now, or later, you may be sure of this: Richman Brothers Clothes will always be the best values possible under the conditions.

The personal story of the first American to see combat with the R. A. F. last summer, Arthur Donahue's "Tally-Ho!" is now listed among the new books at the Mansfield Public Library.

She is also the author of "The Rolling Years" and "Remember The End."

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield
Public Library)

Animal stories that end happily are unusual because the lives of many wild animals end in tragedy. But the two new animal stories in the children's room of the Mansfield public library end in moments of triumph for the leading characters. The first concerns that of a wild horse and the other deals with a jungle monkey.

STORMY, THE FIRST MUSTANG, by Dorothy C. Hogner—Stormy was probably the first horse born in America. The White Arabian left here by DeSoto was his mother and Black Miguel was his father. The five grown horses and the four colts in the band became wild horses in a year seeking pasture and water wherever it could be found. Stormy had to be his own protection after he was lost in a prairie fire, but at last he became the leader of the herd.

KODRU, THE MONKEY by E. Cadvallader Smith—Kodru was a twin monkey. He and his brother were taught what jungle animals must know to save their lives, and at last he grew so wise and powerful that he could win a battle with old Barku, the chief of the tribe.

Advices Autoists How To Conserve Gasoline And Oil

DETROIT —INS— If the nation's motorists drive at conservative speeds and keep their cars in the "pink" of mechanical condition, 1,500,000,000 gallons of gasoline can be diverted every year into defense channels.

This is the opinion of L. G. Peed, vice president of the De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation, who pointed to two ways in which motorists can help to conserve gasoline, oil and rubber, vital to national defense.

"For one thing, each motorist can save both oil and rubber if he drives his car at more conservative rates of speed," Peed said. "Then, he can achieve both fuel and tire economy by seeing to it that his car is operating at all times at its highest point of mechanical efficiency."

Vimms? What do they cost?
A few cents a day—less than any product of comparable type and potency.

Government officials say 3 out of 4 Americans need more vitamins and minerals. Chances are 3 to 1 that you will benefit from the vitamins and minerals in Vimms.

Vimms? How many a day?
3 or 4 tablets a day. Most people (children and adults) will need 3. They're easy and pleasant to swallow or eat... all at one time or with meals, as desired. Like other foods, vitamins are harmless. Under any ordinary condition your body will use only what it needs.

NOTE TO DOCTORS AND NUTRITIONISTS
Vimms are chemically standardized and biologically controlled; a balanced dietary supplement whose formula is guaranteed to supply, in each day's ration of 3 tablets, the entire minimum adult requirements of Vitamins A, B₁, B₂ (G), C, D, and Iron, plus protective quantities of Vitamin P-P (Nicotinamide); and over one-half of the minimum daily requirements of Calcium; and about one-third of Phosphorus.

Tuberculosis Not Hereditary

STEPS being taken in Mansfield and Richland county to give more attention to disclosing cases of tuberculosis in an early stage adds interest to an informative article by Dr. Kendall Emerson in Life and Health magazine. In this article Dr. Kendall answers some of the questions not generally understood by the average person.

"No matter how poor, run down, malnourished, overworked, or badly housed you may be, you will not have tuberculosis unless the germ gains entrance to your body," he says. "It is the tubercle bacillus alone that causes tuberculosis, and the only way to prevent the disease from developing is to eradicate these germs from the world."

"Tuberculosis is eminently a family disease. Obviously the reason for this is that tuberculosis, being an infectious disease, is most likely to pass from one member of the family to others with whom he is in intimate contact."

"The old belief that tuberculosis 'runs in families' and is hereditary has long since been exploded. If we look on the germ of tuberculosis as the seed and the human lungs as the soil, we may say that the soil varies in its fertility for the growth of the germ from person to person. Thus there may be some family lack of ability to inhibit this growth or to kill off even a small number of invaders. The lesson from this is that those in whose families tuberculosis has been prevalent for some generations are under special obligation to watch their health and to avoid contact with known cases of the disease."

Dr. Emerson points out that keeping physically fit is important in combating tuberculosis, and that being run down opens channels for the entrance of disease, precisely as holes in worn-out shoes allow moisture to enter.

Good-Bye, Status Quo

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT," she wonders, "will America be like when the war is over?"

You'd be surprised to know how many people ask that question. And always, behind the words, you feel the tremor of the same motive—FEAR. NOT fear of war, BUT FEAR OF CHANGE. We want to save America, but most urgently, we want to save America unchanged. As is, with the same sacred Status Quo.

We love America. We love its power, peace and prosperity. We'll go to unheard-of lengths to defend these cherished attributes. Face any risk. Make any sacrifice. Pay any price. And do it willingly, with abundant courage and shrewdness.

BUT WHEN IT'S OVER, WE WANT TO FIND THE SAME AMERICA WE KNEW IN 1889 or 1908 or 1941.

Well, we won't. And we might as well begin to get used to the idea. We might as well begin, right here and now, to kiss our Status Quo good-bye. For we're never going to see the Dear Old Days again. And we wouldn't know what to do with them if we did!

Of course, we'll blame it on the war. We're convinced that all this chaos and tumult are due to those Dead End Kids—Hitler, Stalin and Mussolini. . . . with maybe some messy maneuvering by Roosevelt, Chamberlain, and Churchill. But it isn't.

Statement of Views.

Editor News-Journal:

Because I have frequently been asked, during the past few months, "What is the colored man's view of the great world crisis and what is his attitude in relation to the same?" I decided to address this letter to the public, but mark you, this is merely, "what one man thinks."

First of all, the average colored man thinks that America is the greatest country in the world. He realizes to the fullest extent that every privilege which he has ever enjoyed, every dollar which he ever earned, or every letter which he ever learned, was made possible by the democratic principles of our great country. He appreciates the fact that in this country he can serve God according to the dictates of his own mind, and that as long as he stays within the law he not only has the protection, but the unlimited privileges which no other nation can give.

With reference to the world crisis, I believe that the colored man of today stands just exactly where Stephen Decatur stood when he said, "Our country, in her intercourse with other nations, may she always be in the right, but our country right or wrong." He further stands ready to join with American forces, to wipe out any menace which may threaten the fundamentals of our great government.

The average colored man feels that the first obligation to his community is a moral obligation, and it is up to him to put forth his best efforts to help make his community the best in the world. He himself is obedient to the law, and he strives hard to train his children in the fundamentals of good citizenship, thereby strengthening the future.

There are many phases and angles to this subject which I could discuss at length, but suffice to say that the average colored man is an American, first, last, and all the time, and he stands ready to answer any call, or to obey any order which stands for the salvation of our great nation.

Sometimes he chases butterflies away. Sometimes for this he does not seem to care.

At times he seems to dream and thumps his tail. Against the bright green of his tufted floor.

I'm sure he reasons his small master will at length awake and romp with him the same.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Few Nazi Troops on West Front But Britain Unready to Attack

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The vigorous questions raised by the British people regarding an expeditionary force to Europe have been echoed this week both openly and privately by high officials in Washington.

In some circles there has been a feeling that with summer gone, and the Russian army pushed back and back, Churchill has lost his golden opportunity. Other officials, who realize the problem the British face, are not so critical.

However, gleaned from expert military quarters, here are the inescapable facts:

The Germans now have only thirty divisions in Western Europe. Counting about 15,000 men to a division (though the number varies), this means about 450,000 men. But of these, it is doubtful if Hitler's generalissimo could risk using more than ten divisions, or 150,000 men, to oppose the British. The other troops would have to be scattered over France, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia to prevent uprisings. That is one advantage of attacking at this time—the belligerent spirit in the occupied areas.

Contrasted with this Nazi force, the British have an army of more now has a regular military air service across both the North and South Atlantic, operating on schedule, just as punctually as any commercial airway in the U. S. A. . . . Good news for the troops eaten by chiggers in the Louisiana maneuvers: Denton Crowl of Toledo had just discovered a chemical which will make them scarce as American heavy bombers. . . . We now have 17 U. S. military and naval attack squadrons stationed in London, not counting several hundred a month who go and come to observe aerial warfare, etc. . . . Jesse Jones is angling to get John Hertz, original king of the Yellow Taxis in Chicago, appointed to the Maritime Commission. . . . Officially there is no censorship in Canada, but the Canadian exchange and finance bureau take a careful peak at any letters which they think might contain money—especially from American banks.

Mysterious Guns.

DURING his private conference with congressional leaders preceding his special message on revision of the Neutrality Act, the president made a significant statement regarding guns.

He told the legislative chiefs the navy now has enough guns to arm all U. S. merchant vessels that will require them.

That was all the president said about the weapons. The leaders asked no questions and he volunteered no information regarding the number of guns available, their type, where they are, or how they were obtained. His only other observation was to stress the importance of speedy legislative action because of the time required to arm a merchant ship.

"It may take as much as a month to bring some of these ships into drydock and mount guns," he explained.

None of the congressional leaders raised the point, but Roosevelt's assertion that the navy now had all the necessary guns revealed a different situation from the one he had pictured about a month ago.

At the White House conference preceding his last fireside broadcast, in which he denounced Nazi attacks on U. S. ships, the president was asked by a congressional leader why measures were not taken to arm the vessels. His reply was, "We haven't got the guns."

Where and how the guns were obtained is his secret.

Note: One of the six senate votes cast against the Neutrality Act when it was passed in 1917 was by Senator Hiram Johnson. The Californian caustically denounced the measure as an abrogation of traditional U. S. rights on the sea and mocked the idea that it was an aid to peace. Yet despite this stand, Johnson, now a bitter isolationist Roosevelt-hater, will oppose the president's proposals for revision of the Neutrality Act.

Mardi Gras Climaxes Fall Festival; Many Prizes Are Awarded.

GALION—Several thousand people jammed Galion streets Thursday afternoon and evening for the Mardi Gras, one of the highlights of the week-long Fall festival which is being sponsored here by the Galion Merchants association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

CHAPTER XXIX

Jason was several yards from the derrick and his workmen when he paused in front of the crowd. Sedately he removed his hat and addressed them.

"Gentlemen and ladies," he began, "it ain't gonna be no excitement, and we appreciate you all just lettin' us alone, thank you suhs. This Mr. Dan Mayfield's place. He done gone to glory, but Miss Millie she don't like no ugly things her ownself. We paints her oil well fo' her, that's all."

People were grinning, highly amused. Dal and Thad and Lillian, however, were more seriously concerned. They listened somewhat anxiously to Jason.

All at once the old negro closed his eyes and turned his face to heaven.

"Good lawd," he resumed then, in surprising prayer, "I has to 'splain this to you too, suh. I knows it's Sunday. But this the onliest day in the week when it ain't no workmens here and so this is the onliest chance we gits. I makes these niggers rest two whole days to make up for working on a Sunday, and I rests two days my ownself. Thank you suh, amen."

With that astonishing cleansing of his conscience, Jason Weems turned and hobbled back to his task. He had completely stymied his audience. Nobody quite dared interfere with him. Dal and Thad looked at Lillian and at each other; she shook her head in warning, but said, "Baby blue! The darndest things do happen!"

They could only wait near the crowd while the negroes worked. The under-current of levity was swelling again there when they saw the negroes begin moving the pile of oil pipe in order to paint all of it. It was long lengths of iron, six inches in diameter and dangerously heavy.

"Listen," one negro called, "I knows how to handle that gasoline engine, Mr. Weems. I been watching all over the oil field. You takes that steel rope what runs up to the top of the derrick and—"

Jason assumed charge of that, too. He knew nothing about it really but this couldn't be admitted. With his own hands he was fitting the cable hook into a pipe. A moment later, straddling it for added pull and leverage, he signalled the impromptu engineer to take up slack.

"Run yo' engine a little," Jason called. "Run it!"

Nobody quite understood what happened, but the crowd here was suddenly transfixed with horror.

Black Jason was dangling at the end of a steel cable 30 feet up the derrick, and was still being lifted as the gasoline winch turned.

Jason let out a terrorized scream.

For an ageless instant some 400 people just stood there as if frozen. A moment ago they were relaxed in easy Sunday afternoon amusement, watching an eccentric, harmless old negro man do a peculiar thing. Then all at once that same old negro was in critical danger.

Jason's clothing had somehow been hooked by the steel cable and when people discovered it he was spinning crazily 30 feet high. Off to one side a motor was belching chuff-chuff-chuff-chuff. From its maze of gears and drums and wheels a steel line as big as a man's finger extended taut up to the top of the derrick, 120 feet. There the cable went through a pulley and stretched down inside the derrick, suspending Jason like a human pendulum, lolling slowly, tortuously. He flailed his arms and legs which made his turn. He tried to reach up and catch the cable in a hand but lacked the strength.

His head and shoulders edged downward from the point of suspension. His hat dropped. His coat flopped over to conceal his head entirely and frighten him still further.

He screamed in unearthly terror. That seemed to jar the other negroes into some sort of action. The man at the engine, just discovering Jason's plight, cried piteously in his own right—"Mister Weems! Mister Weems!"—but he lacked presence of mind to see that he caused the trouble until a second negro ran to him.

This second negro grabbed a lever. Scree-e-ee! The engine gears screeched hellishly. Wheels braked to a jolting stop, reserved and started turning again.

"Look out! Look out! Oh lawdy, Mr. Weems!" The first negro engineer saw the second one's action, and this brought him to life. He sprang wildly at the same lever.

"Scree-e-e-e!"

Other negroes had come running to the engine. One left and ran foolishly around the derrick base, pointing up and shouting—and across his path flashed a running white man, Dal Tower.

"Dallas!" Lillian screamed.

Nobody heeded her. Thad Monroe had grabbed her arm, himself petrified with the drama before them. Then all around men were shouting, running, groaning in profanity or prayer.

Dal Tower literally jumped from a pile of pipe to the bottom of the ladder that extended up the side of the derrick. This ladder was the usual narrow thing, rungs no more than steel rods, with no sort of "banister" or safety device. Moreover, it was virtually straight up, for derricks are frameworks with square bases whose sides extend upward to form slender obelisks.

Dal glanced up once. He realized, in one breathless rush, that the top was 120 feet away—the height of a 10 or 12 story building. But through the steel framework half way up now was the dangling form of a lovable old black man.

He started climbing. He moved incredibly fast. He closed his eyes because he had a moment of dizziness, or of imaginary dizziness; and anyway the hubbalo down below was distracting. Step-step-step-step-step, hand over hand, foot over foot—he opened his eyes as he passed the tops of oil soaked trees—step-step-step-step-step—away off yonder was Buford Hill where he and Lillian—he ground his teeth tightly, thoughts snapped back.

"Oh Dallas!" he heard Lillian faintly, far below him now. He did not answer. There was too much other shouting anyway.

The gasoline engine was chuff-chuffing down there. Up at the derrick peak, the metal pulley was squealing a bit.

"Hold on, Jason! Hold on! Hold on!" He shouted that encouragement at the old man. He doubted if Jason heard. Jason was only a terrified thing of arms and legs and clothing, all mixed up in what otherwise would have been comic array.

Dallas climbed hurriedly past the platform that was two-thirds way up, where on week days oil workers stood to handle the pipe in drilling. He had to go on. Now he could look down on house tops, on most of the town.

Among the spectators on the ground, Mrs. Mayfield strangely enough remained most calm. When she fully appreciated what was happening she merely turned pale and continued to stare upward. She was still standing near her house.

In front of her was a veritable stampede. Men were acting involuntarily, few indeed seemed to have orderly minds. One young fellow dashed up to her. "Telephone!" he rasped out in passing and sprang on up the porch to go inside the house. She realized vaguely that it would mean a doctor or police or a fire truck again, and she looked on this unseemly desecration with an air of resignation. She could not fully encompass, yet, the extreme danger which Jason faced; she could only gaze up at him, and at young Dallas Tower climbing the precarious ladder.

Lillian had cried out two or three times in sheer frenzy. Thad Monroe reached to put a protective arm around her but she moved away unseeing. He was quiet in the excitement around them. In truth, he could see nothing to do, no advice to shout. He could just gaze up, fascinated, at dangling Jason.

When he turned his head down to Lillian again, she was gone. He couldn't see her in the crowd. He was momentarily frantic. Then he reasoned that she probably had gone to her mother, or was simply engulfed in the milling throng. He began elbowing hastily through, seeking her. The shouting all at once seemed in new crescendo but he ignored it. He stretched up on tiptoe looking for her. He caught glimpses of Martin Deale, of Bubba Hightower, of Baby Doll Mayfield, and up farther even of Mrs. Mayfield herself, but he did not see Lillian. Then, irresistibly, he turned back to the derrick itself. Thirty, perhaps 40 feet up, was Lillian!

and he told a large group of Mansfield club women the Hitler as he knew him and of the reaction of the German people toward their leader. He said the German people would never rebel against Hitler because they would never have a chance. The Gestapo, or secret police, have the countryside and towns so closely watched that hardly a private conversation may be carried on. He stated that the Gestapo is a complete auxiliary army, minutely planned to know everything going on in the country. He explained the workings of this vast army of men. Ziemer believes that nothing will ever stop Hitler unless it is his death or the invasion of Germany so strong that it would wipe out his whole machine. He feels that Americans have made many careless promises to a very helpless group of people abroad. He also stated that many millions of Germans really admire Hitler, especially the youth and the labor class.

"He has created a laborer's paradise in Germany," said Ziemer, "and the youth there practically worship the man." "They have been trained to that belief and their following is strong." "Although," he said, "Hitler is known as a 'bum' painter or pariah, he nevertheless is truly artistic, having painted many fine pictures. Just as the world underestimates his abilities in one respect they also underestimate his treachery. We have lived on too much conceit and self-confidence, and also, said to say, on wishful thinking. Mrs. Paul Bovard, Federation president introduced the speaker and following the lecture a brief question and answer program was held. High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Perhaps you've discovered that the shirtwaister is the most well-fitting dress for larger figures... especially when you make it yourself! Pattern 9882 by Marian Martin has just those details you've learned are slenderizing—the pointed yoke with darts below it to control the bodice fullness, the slim front panel of the skirt. The Sew Chart, too, is a great help in securing that tailored effect. The collar may be cut in two styles, made of contrasting fabric like the yoke, or omitted altogether. Make use of the three sleeve lengths (short, three-quarter, long) and the optional button and tie-trim to create several charming versions of this frock! Pattern 9882 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 requires 3 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric. Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number. Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, Oct. 18.

QUITE unforeseen benefits and advancement may materialize as the result of diligence, application, hard work and common sense. Shun extravagance, indulgence and all sorts of excess, both in funds and energy. Beware the "easiest way" of attaining such prosperity. Intrigues and illicit performances would bring regrets. Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which splendid success attends industry and practical efforts and not schemes, intrigues and other hures of sharp practice. All illicit ways and indulgences may lead to regrets and loss of happiness, advancement and financial profit. A child born on this day should be many sided, have excellent talents and meet with fine success and good fortune in life, provided it curb tendencies to excesses.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

I caught my lips tightly between my teeth to keep from crying out my poignant sympathy for Marion Morton, whose letter to her mother I was reading. I could visualize the dauntless, tortured girl, facing the fact that her mother could know nothing of the old childish code, and thus could not read between the lines of her inexplicable letter, yet repeating the ruse which she had used with Ronald to get hold of Mary, the only person in all the world who could interpret what she was saying and perhaps bring or send her aid.

"You see, Mummy," the pitiful letter went on—and my throat constricted in agony, as I knew Lillian had done, at the plight of this girl so dear to both of us—"although I can't be married at home, I can't tell you why now, but I have a good reason—yet I want to have all the old superstitious things that brides have. I want something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue. And years ago, when we were kids, Mary promised me that she would give me something blue to wear at my wedding. Mummy, please show this letter to Mary and ask her to give you something blue for me to wear."

Crushed by Message.

No wonder Lillian had collapsed after reading that plea, one which would crush any mother who had dreamed dreams of a beautiful wedding for her only daughter.

But I thrilled at the heady knowledge of the cheer I now could bring to my friend's heart when she should learn from me of the clever ruse by which Marion had made certain that Mary would be shown her letter.

"I'll tell you more about the wedding when I see you," the astounding letter went on. "I wish I could have Mary and Auntie Madge, but I can't—just you and possibly Dad."

"But just now I mustn't do anything but give you a message that my fiancé wishes you to have. Now, this is very important. Please do eggactly what I tell you."

"The Authority on Authorities"

TEST THE SITUATION.

When you have won the opening trick to which your partner led, and you hold the ace of some other suit, it is sometimes well to lay that down at once if there is any doubt about what may be your best return. This gives him a chance to play either a low or a high card and so let you know whether he wants that suit repeated or would prefer something else. That is, of course, risky if there is a king or queen of your ace suit in the dummy, as use of the ace then may set up a card which you later could knock off. But if the dummy has no honor of the suit higher than the jack or ten, the ace play may tell you how to set the hand, without any great risk being taken.

charging my memory with it. Then, with the knowledge that I could not much longer delay my going downstairs to the library, where my father waited with Harry Underwood, I nevertheless snatched the time to sit back in my chair, close my eyes, and appraise the letter with a view to telling Lillian later about it.

It was not so complicated a letter as the one she had sent to Ronald. But there was something grimmer about it, and for an instant I wondered what it was. Then I knew, and felt ice water run down my spine at the knowledge.

It was a trap for Lillian. Marion knew this, and was frantically trying to warn her mother from entering it, by stressing her appeal that Lillian contact Mary.

"You deserve the Croix de Guerre, Marion darling," I murmured.

Diamonds as a possible sacrifice, in one case East doubled the 4-Spades, but at most tables of the duplicate where this deal arose, it was passed there and played at 4-Spades. The main point of the deal came in the defense against the spade games.

Every West led his club 9 against the 4-Spades, dummy low and the A winning. In most cases East then returned his club 6, hoping his partner had a singleton for a ruff. He did not, and so the declarer made his game by dropping trumps and thereafter losing only one trick in diamonds and one in hearts, in which he led the suit toward his K, East being foolish enough to play his A on it, whereas playing the 7 would have enabled his side to get two tricks in hearts and beat the contract. Only one East made the correct low play, beating the contract this way.

Another East, however, defeated the contract by a testing play on the second trick. After winning with the club A, he laid down the heart A. When West played the Q, he naturally repeated the suit for a ruff, and the diamond A then beat the contract.

The contract can also be beaten by playing the clubs differently, but nobody did it.

Tomorrow's Problem.

THEATERS

Britain's R. A. F.

"A Yank in the R. A. F.," the first picture of Britain's fighting air forces, starring Tyrone Power, opens Saturday at the Ohio. Made in co-operation with the British air ministry the picture shows many of the exciting events of the war including the evacuation at Dunkirk. The story follows Power, an American flyer in Britain, who joins the R. A. F. to get some action. He meets up with Betty Grable, an American heroine, who becomes a heroine, but his romance receives a setback when his commanding officer, played by John Sutton, proposes marriage. Actual combat pictures filmed by the R. A. F. in action show dog fights in the air, and the bombers dropping their deadly loads. Reginald Gardiner is in the cast.

Real Life Drama.

The romance story of the beautiful Texas woman who has for 30 years devoted herself to child welfare in her native state is unfolded in "Blossoms in the Dust," Technicolor production, opening Saturday at the Madison theater. Starring Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon the picture tells of a young couple who share the same interest in bringing a happy family life to homeless waifs. Based on the life of Mrs. Edna Gladney of Fort Worth the picture features Felix Bressart, as a gruff but kindly country doctor, also Fay Holden and Marsha Hunt. More than 800 babies and children were used in the cast. "Man At Large," with Marjorie Weaver and Richard Deer is the second attraction.

European Thriller.

"Man Hunt," an exciting picture with its plot laid in the various capitals of France, continues at the Ritz with Walter Pidgeon and Joan Bennett in the leading role. George Sanders is also cast. Jack Randall in "The Kid From Santa Fe," the second feature, is chockful of action as Randall helps break up a gang who have been smuggling across the border. Clarence Curtis is Randall's leading lady.

Refugee Romance.

Thrilling tale of two lovers in exile, who defy the arm of terror for an interlude of happiness, "They Dare Not Love," showing at the Park co-stars Martha Scott and George Brent as the refugees. Brent plays the role of an Austrian prince who finds refuge in America but not peace. Paul Lukas, Roman Bohan and Kay Linaker are in the cast with Lukas in the part of Brent's cold-blooded nemesis. "The Rangebustlers attempt to clean up a mushroom town in 'Wrangler's Roost,'" the co-attraction. Ray Corrigan, John King and Max Terhune are featured.

Dramatic Story.

"I'll Wait For You," a dramatic story featuring Robert Sterling, Marsha Hunt and Virginia Weidner opens today at the Majestic. The co-attraction, "Mutiny in the Arctic," co-starring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine deals with the adventure of two Americans in search of pitchblende, from which radium is extracted. Anne Nagel provides the romantic interest.

MEMORY FOOLS COWS

FORT ROSS, Cal. — (UP) — Rancher G. A. Call uses a fish line to keep his huge herd of cows from wandering off the range. At first he used an electrically charged wire. After the cows had fully learned their shocking lesson he substituted the fish line and it remains as sacred to them as did the "hot" wire.

FURTHER PLANS TO EASE JOB SLUMP IN CITY

Union Names Committee To Act on Program Others To Be Appointed Later.

Plans to further a three-point program to ease employment dislocations in Mansfield, Ohio, resulting from the defense effort, were underway today with representatives of the Mansfield Manufacturers' association and both CIO and AFL unions taking part.

At a meeting Oct 1 with federal Office of Production Management workers, union men and industrialists agreed on the program.

Under the union and industrialist committee will (1) endeavor to create training centers for defense workers, (2) arrange a means by which unemployed workers may transfer to defense plants without losing seniority rights in original plants, and (3) encourage the filing of defense orders with Mansfield plants.

The committee of industrialists will be organized sometime next week, John Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce reported today.

Meanwhile, the Richland county industrial unions council has announced selection of its four-man committee which will work with the industrialists.

Named to the union committee were Steven Thoma, Lyle Gray, Fred Simon and Stanley Wilburn.

NOVEL IDEA

City Uses Paint To Grade Fire Hydrant Pressure.

FALL RIVER, Mass. — (U.P.) The useful but usually dingy fire hydrant is a thing of beauty in Fall River now. The prettiness of the "plugs," however, is just another aid to firemen.

Formerly the hydrants were chrome yellow with black tops. Now they are painted aluminum with green, orange, red or black spigots.

John W. Moran, superintendent of the water works, suggested painting the hydrants so firemen would know how much water pressure they could expect.

Green, he says, tells the fire-department to "shoot the works, there's plenty of water." It indicates that the hydrant is attached to 16, 20, 24 and 36-inch mains.

Orange means only 10- to 12-inch mains are beneath the street and red calls for caution as water is supplied by only 6- or 8-inch mains. Black indicates a dead end in the pipe where the water supply is lowest.

On reaching a threatening fire according to Moran, firemen can determine whether it would be more advisable to pump from the hydrant nearest the blaze or go to the one around the corner.

Shelby Co-op Club Presents Forceps To City Hospital

SHELBY—Shelby Co-operative club held a regular dinner meeting Thursday night at the Shelby Inn with 20 members and five guests present.

During the program following the dinner, Dr. Elmer Jackson in behalf of the club presented Miss Blanche Metzger, superintendent of Shelby Memorial hospital, with a pair of forceps for the hospital.

Miss Metzger gave a short talk on the work of the hospital. Other hospital employees present were Miss Houg, who also talked on the hospital work, and Miss Clara Fox.

Harry Kanastab of Cleveland, former member of the club, was present and gave an account of his work in Cleveland where he moved recently from here.

The program closed with a talk on the history of forceps given by Dr. Jackson, who had charge of the program. Dr. W. J. Briggs, club president, presided during the affair.

EXPEDITION UNCOVERS DATA ON LONG-LOST INDIAN TRIBE

(By International News Service) DENVER—Pieces of human jaw bones, teeth and corn grits are beginning to tell the story about a tribe of Indians which lived on a hill on the Book Cliff Region of east-central Utah, near Cisco a thousand years ago.

Members of the Colorado Museum of Natural History returned to Denver from a digging expedition hearing the relics of the Indian "ghost town" which has been buried under the sun-baked hill for centuries.

The relics of this summer's trip will be added to those taken out of the excavation, the past two summers to determine what kind of people lived in the 500-yard-long village, according to Miss Marie Wormington, museum curator of archeology.

"To indicate the extent of our knowledge so far about these people," Miss Wormington explained, "we found teeth in the ruins which were good strong teeth and were worn but little."

"These people were meat eaters because the teeth of corn-eaters like the early-day Pueblo Indians are worn down from the corn and grit of the metates which is used to grind the corn," she said.

"It is true we also found corn there, along with a metate, but corn was just a side dish to these early-day Indians because their teeth are so good and because we also found a plentiful supply of deer and buffalo in the center of the city."

Another relic which may help in the study of these mysterious people was a rough cedar post set upright in the ground near a circular fire pit.

"That old post, with the bark still on it is well preserved considering the centuries it has spent underground," Miss Wormington said.

"We are going to send this post to William Malloy, formerly of the University of Utah now in Montana, who is an expert on tree rings. He may be able to tell us the age of this post, thus revealing when it was cut for timber and disclose the approximate time the old Indian village was going full swing," she explained.

The archeological expedition unearthed the ruins of stone walls, some of them six feet high and all completely covered by the sand and mud of centuries. One wall built of large adobe bricks similar to the ones used in Mexico today, provided a mystery. It was built in a U-shape and apparently was some sort of fence. Miss Wormington revealed.

"Apparently, this village was no small settlement, but a real village with houses dotted all over the hilltop and some of them built on extremely sharp slopes," she said.

The headless burial of the Indians was discovered last summer but the mystery of this deepened at this digging when more human jaw bones were found. But no skulls or other bones were found in the pile of other bones near a fire pit.

STUDY RIVER

Army Surveys Flood Control Along Missouri Basin.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — (U.P.) Army flood control engineers and city officials, concerned over a threat to millions of dollars worth of industries along the Missouri river, are considering measures to combat major floods.

Not since 1903 has a major flood rolled down the Missouri, but since then industrial plants in North Kansas City and Kansas City have mushroomed along the unprotected lowlands bordering the river.

On the Kansas side a $2,500,000 levee has just been completed to protect five miles of the Kansas City, Kas., industrial section.

Army engineers estimate that a flood the size of the 1903 inundation would send 10 to 15 feet of water over the Municipal airport destroy factories and industries in several districts, and submerge all the bottom area.

The engineers and city officials recently toured the river in a U. S. inspection boat, noting places where several feet of rise would send water roaring over the lowlands. A minor flood recently threatened the airport, and temporary sandbag levees were erected to keep the water from runways used by the Transcontinental Airlines.

"That old post, with the bark still on it is well preserved considering the centuries it has spent underground," Miss Wormington said.

"We are going to send this post to William Malloy, formerly of the University of Utah now in Montana, who is an expert on tree rings. He may be able to tell us the age of this post, thus revealing when it was cut for timber and disclose the approximate time the old Indian village was going full swing," she explained.

NEW HOSPITAL OPENING SET

Sanitarium, Formerly Nursing Home, Can Now Care For 35 to 40 Patients.

The official opening of a new $25,000 addition to the Mansfield Sanitarium-Hospital on the Wooster road east of Mansfield was set for Oct. 26 today by T. E. Sauder, hospital manager.

Formerly named the Hilltop Nursing Home, the new hospital will offer facilities for the nursing and care of from 35 to 40 patients, Sauder said.

Additions to the brick building are all on the north side of the original plant and include eight rooms with quarters for patients, a new kitchen and rooms and a six-room dwelling for Sauder and hospital nurses.

In the treatment rooms, Sauder continued, will be housed new X-ray equipment and physiotherapy treatment machines.

The latter he said would make possible treatment of patients through so-called "natural" means such as electrical and water treatments.

Although as yet uninstalled, delivery of the X-ray equipment is expected within five or six weeks.

The new facilities virtually double number of patients who can be cared for at the hospital, Sauder said.

GRANDSON IN INFANTRY
CAMP WOLTERS, Tex. — (U.P.) — Buffalo Bill Cody, a cavalryman first, last and always, probably wouldn't like this, but it's true nevertheless. One of the illustrious Indian fighter's grandsons is an army lieutenant—and in the infantry, of all things.

BUYING BOOST HIKES REVENUE

Increased Purchases Prior To New Tax Law Hikes Sales Tax Receipts Here.

Increased buying in Richland county during the last week of September in anticipation of the new federal taxes which were effective Oct. 1 stepped the county's sales tax receipts up to $17,227 for that week as compared with $13,659 in the corresponding week last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebbright reported today.

Buying in Richland and other Ohio counties for the week was comparable to pre-Christmas business last year, the report said. In Ohio, the tax increase for the week was $878, 388 over the corresponding week of last year.

Sales tax receipts in the county for the first nine months of this year amounted to $544,409, an increase of $106,651 over a similar period in 1940.

Richland county ranked twelfth among the state's 88 counties in sales tax collections for the nine months ending Sept. 30. Only counties including cities with a much greater population than Mansfield topped Richland county in tax receipts.

GETS CONTRACTS

Two Mansfield firms today had been awarded contracts for constructing the Settlement East ditch in Sharon township for a total of $1486.

The contracts, let by the county commissioners, went to R. O. Darling and Son, $1,150 for labor, and Vogeles Brothers, $336.78 for materials. Awards were made on low bids.

GEN. JOHNSON: New Strike Threatened at Plane Plant

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—"A Fox" said Mr. Aesop, if I remember my childhood, "lost his tail in a trap, but escaped. All the other foxes gathered round to feel sorry for him. He would have none of it. He told them how useless and what a burden a tail is and how much better he felt and better and faster he was since his tail was lost. From this he went on to urge that the whole fox family get rid of their tails. But they were foxes and they just laughed and went away proudly waving their tails behind them."

I remember too some old nursery nonsense:

"Let's cut off our noses said Aaron to Moses."

"It's the fashion to wear 'em said Moses to Aaron."

Most official American visitors to England recently come back and say that England has practically abandoned automobile production—except a few for export—and, therefore, so should we. That England is spending more of her income for defense than we are, and has converted more of her factories to war production and that we should therefore equal her pace.

Of course none of these things are any reasonable yard-stick at all for our effort. Our goal and measure is "What is needed? What have we got? How can we get more without utterly disrupting our economic system and destroying civilian morale?"

None of these people approach this problem from that angle. After all these months they are only now "starting, to begin to commence" to find the answers. But "what is England doing?" is a substitute for the unthinking. I doubt if they know what England is doing. It is becoming clearer every day that they didn't correctly compare our total tax burden with hers. Spokesmen for England have several times said that she didn't intend entirely to sacrifice her little fellow in business. Letter in my mail indicate that she isn't doing it—and in that she is wise.

England's automotive problem is entirely different from ours. She is a smaller country with shorter distances and her people have never been as completely motorized as ours. Automobiles have redistributed our population and revolutionized our whole territorial system of distribution of supplies and location of homes with relation to working places.

This long delay in finding facts and laying plans followed by the sudden "whoop-la" of universal cracking down by the boys who should have been finding the facts and laying the plans may be the easy way out for them but it certainly casts doubt on the advisability of placing in their hands the power of economic life or death over so many communities, industries and labor and other groups.

It isn't as if there had been no model for a reasonable and timely approach to the problem. There were many—our own in the World War—copied with greater or less faithfulness by all the war-powers of Europe. But these gentlemen would have none of it—until just now when they want to take a broad-axe instead of a scalpel and hack out in a few weeks what required years to do decently and well.

Of course, we must speed up and sacrifice. This column has been preaching that for years. Of course, as these Johnnie-comely gentlemen are so late in saying we've got to take the fat off. But if we don't leave something of the skeleton, heart, nerves, blood vessels, muscles and body where is the use in taking the fat off? We might as well step out in the wood-yard, do the whole thing at one shot and ship the remains to Hitler.

DIRECTOR TELLS
KIWANIS 'RELIEF
HERE TO STAY'Sherwood Outlines Work of Welfare Department in Talk Before Club.

Stating that the advent of government into the realm of relief "will be with us as long as we live," Charles Sherwood, state director of welfare, outlined to the Mansfield Kiwanis club the workings of his department at the club's regular weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

"We are not going to get ahead of caring for the aged, crippled, blind, mentally incompetent or criminal," said Sherwood, "as much as we would like to get back to 'the good old days.'"

The state welfare leader pointed out that the care of its weak was one of democracy's strongest points. He predicted that even the dictatorships would have to establish social security and other social measures.

"I don't know if the dictators can get along without doing a great amount of welfare work," said Sherwood, "but I'm sure that democracy can't as far as we can see ahead."

Sherwood spoke to about 80 members of the club. Attorney H. H. Schettler acted as chairman of yesterday's meeting. Sherwood was accompanied by Arthur L. Glatke, superintendent of Ohio State Reformatory.

The state welfare director called attention to the growth of his department, stating that its expenditures have increased from $200,000,000 in 1929-30 to $131,000,000 in 1940-41.

Sherwood described the workings of the four divisions within his department—business administration, mental diseases, correction and social administration—and the various problems each faces.

DEANNA OUT

Universal Executives Won't
Explain Suspension.

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Deanna Durbin, credited with having saved Universal Studio from bankruptcy with her golden tones, has been suspended in an unexplained surprise.

She'll be back soon, the film colony predicts confidently—but as confidently asserts that as soon as her contract expires next year she'll move along to some other lot, following Director Joe Pasternak and husband Vaughn Paul through the Universal exits.

Matthew Fox, Universal vice president, declined to discuss the suspension. But Hollywood recalled that Deanna was miffed that Universal did not give Paul a chance as associate producer.

Dominion Officials and Union
Reach Partial Accord.

With union contract details still undergoing negotiation 425 employees of the Dominion Electrical company remained on strike for the seventh straight day today.

At a management-union session last night clauses calling for an eight hour day, time and a half pay for overtime and double pay for holiday work were written into the contract, leaving union wage hike demands and the closed shop issue still to be settled, Samuel Shapiro, Dominion personnel manager, said this morning.

Machinists union (AFL), Local 1405, yesterday won an NLRB election giving it the right to represent workers in the production, press room and maintenance departments of the plant.

OHIO PEDESTRIANS MUST WATCH OUT FOR BOTH AUTOS AND COPS

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS—Joe Pedestrian (Cap P.), who is chased up telephone poles by automobiles in nightmares and cartoons, must become doubly alert in Ohio.

He must watch out not only for the motor vehicles, but for the police. The spectacle of the jaywalker practicing broken field running in mid-town, dodging street cars and side-stopping motorcycles while the cop on the corner blocks out the autos, is no longer funny, safety officials say.

In Cleveland, where the traffic toll for 1941 totals 98, as compared with 87 in the corresponding period of last year, traffic policemen pass out boxes of candy to pedestrians who exercise exemplary caution.

In Columbus the city officials are getting tough. Forty-six persons have been killed in motor vehicle accidents this year, as against 40 in 1940. Thirty-two of the 46 were pedestrians.

Safety Director Roy B. Weed ordered police to crack down on "reckless pedestrians." "If they won't save themselves," he declared today, "we'll try to save them by making arrests where necessary."

Cincinnati police also are shepherding pedestrians closely. Pamphlets urging safety were handed out to both pedestrians and motorists. Police conduct a safety-driving school nightly. Cincinnati's county death toll is 96, compared with 103 last year.

Heavy fines are imposed on flagrant violators in Toledo, whose county deaths total 64, as against 75 last year.

In Youngstown, retired policemen and college students form a safety patrol to guard intersections near schools. Youngstown's death toll is 29 as compared with 24 in the 1940 period.

Believed to be the only collection of its kind in Mansfield the salt and pepper shaker collection of Mrs. Thomas Schacher, Williams avenue, will be on display at the Mansfield Public library within the next day or two. The collection of 200 pairs has grown from a graduation gift presented to Mrs. Schacher from the late W. H. Daley, New York artist, and includes sets, all gifts, from Canada, Mexico and Cuba.

Deputy sheriffs had the novel experience today of getting an offer from a group of boys north of the city to help the officers solve the mystery of some Halloween pranks the last two nights in that community. The boys who offered their services were first accused of being members of the group of pranksters, but they contended they were innocent and offered to help find the violators in order to clear themselves. Although officers are skeptical, they told the boys to produce their evidence and then they will decide where the guilt belongs.

Gerald Guthrie, special postal clerk, is a good natured man, but it wouldn't be too advisable to mention the word "alligator" in his presence for the next few days. The reason is that he's been taking quite a bit of teasing from his fellow clerks on that subject, because he told them some rather incredible tales about gators upon his return from a Florida vacation trip recently. Tallest of his tales, according to his pals, is one about a fight between an alligator and a man. But Guthrie insists there really was such a fight. "Of course," he admits, "it was staged for the benefit of tourists."

At least one Mansfield storeowner is certain that the war will continue to raise the cost of living and advise it on his store windows. Edward Irwin, South Diamond street delicatessen owner, daily paints his predictions of what prices on many articles will be a year from now. Among his predictions are: hamburger at 98 cents a pound, butter at a dollar a pound, and milk at 18 cents a quart on Oct. 17, 1942.

At the same time, cars driven by Beatrice M. Jayne, 130 East Fourth street, and William Weske, Sandusky, were colliding at an opposite corner. Neither driver was injured but the bumpers and fenders of the autos were damaged.

Three autos were damaged in a collision on Ashland road near the Armory later in the day but no one was injured.

DRAFT OFFICIAL
GIVES WARNING

Says Commercial Schools Cannot Promise 'Job Exemptions.'

A warning against private commercial schools which claim to train men for defense jobs and enable them to obtain draft deferment was issued today by Ohio state selective service headquarters in Columbus.

Lieut. Col. F. G. Spencer, occupational deferment division chief, said today that in many cases the schools could not prepare youths for defense industry in the brief time promised and that in no case are they in a position to promise exemption.

"High pressure salesmen," he added, "are exploiting the defense situation to sell such courses."

AFL WORKERS
DEMAND NEW
WAGE BOOSTSWould Curtail Orders Totaling
$750,000,000 at West Coast Factory.

(By United Press)

Strike action affecting $750,000,000 worth of airplane orders threatened today at the Consolidated Aircraft plant at San Diego, Cal., unless the federal government offers to bear the cost of wage increases agreed upon by the company and an AFL union.

Other labor developments included prospect of early settlement of the Midland Steel Products company strike at Cleveland which has idled 15,400 workers and the final action of the American Federation of Labor convention driving 125,000 welders and brewery workers from the AFL.

Apparent company-union peace at the Giant Aircraft plant, employing 27,000 men, was shattered by angry protests from AFL machinists against a company statement that negotiated wage increases would not be forthcoming unless the federal government bore the cost.

Charging "bad faith" because it was the company that had proposed the compromise wage increase, the machinists' local petitioned its international executive board for authorization to strike. W. C. Chudleigh, president of the local, said a walkout could be expected upon receipt of the authorization "unless there is some improvement in the situation."

Because of what he termed "strong sentiment" for a wildcat "workout," Chudleigh appealed to the workers over the plant's public address system last night to stay on the job for "at least 24 hours."

The proposed wage increases—granting a 75 cents hourly minimum for skilled workers and a 13 cents hourly increase in lower paid brackets—ended an earlier strike threat at the plant.

Company spokesmen said the government was expected to pay for the increases, estimated at $82,000,000, under a clause in airplane contracts providing compensation to manufacturers for increased production costs. The war department was believed to be studying the case to determine if the wage boost should be paid by the government.

In the 17-day strike of 1,400 United Automobile Workers at the Midland Steel Products company, details of a wage gain compromise tentatively accepted by the union and company for ending the walkout were expected to be worked out in conferences today.

Conciliator James F. Dewey, who previously disclosed that eight to 13 cents hourly wage increases had been agreed upon, announced the tentative settlement last night. If details of the agreement can be ironed out, it will be presented to the union membership for ratification.

Killer Held In Solitary After Escape Attempt

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind.—(AP)—Virginius (Dink) Carter, who Sheriff William Winegard said confessed killing five persons, was kept under guard in solitary confinement overnight because, he warned he would make a break for liberty or death if given the electric chair.

Carter is on trial on a charge of murdering his niece, Mary Elizabeth Breiden, 12, May 16.

Winegard ordered the precautions after reporting yesterday the discovery that the 33-year-old Aurora workman had saved out three bars of his third floor cell window, made an 18-foot rope of canvas strips from his hammock and obtained train information.

"He said he'd been figuring on making an escape," the sheriff said, "and still figures on escaping if he gets the chair."

Winegard said Carter told him he preferred death by police gunfire to the electric chair.

The sheriff said Carter also confessed killing his parents-in-law, Johnston and Nina Ague, both 60, and his brother-in-law, Leo and William Ague, 24 and 30, on their farm southwest of Lawrenceburg the same day.

Winegard said Carter laid the killings to a grudge he had held since Leo and William forced him to marry their sister, Mary. He later divorced Mary and married her sister, Leona, now 23.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

You Can't Print That!

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual persons—living or dead—you've probably guessed right).

CEDRIC is a British millionaire—important in big business, equally important in society. He'd lived an uneventful life until just a couple of years ago when he met Pamela, a pretty young thing who was a chorus girl in a second-rate London night club. He went for her like a dive bomber.

And she, if you could believe the look in her eyes fell for him, too.

So Cedric divorced his wife and gave up his two children, and brought Pamela to America to give her her heart's desire—a career. He bought her furs and jewels and trunksful of clothes, and when she had turned a few heads in the New York nighties he took her to Hollywood and spent a small fortune taking her to all the smart spots every night so she'd be "seen."

He did a good job. Pamela became a starlet, and already she's garnered a small amount of fame.

Well, Cedric's business keeps him in New York now. A few days ago he sent Pamela a gigantic engagement ring and an ardent letter asking her to be his wife. And she wired back that if he'd send her $500 for train fare and expenses she'd come to New York to be married.

So Cedric sent the five hundred. And Pamela used it. But not for train fare.

She used it to hire a press agent to handle the publicity on her engagement—to another fellow!

But you can't print that. When Cedric returns to his wife and children his friends will think he's finally come to his senses. They won't know he came to—the hard way.

Helen has always been unlucky in love. She came to New York to forget a shattered romance, and landed a job singing in one of the small East Side spots. Night after night she sang to the people sitting around at tables for two—and then she met Jack. He was just what she'd been looking for, tall and handsome, and with a sweetness you don't find often around the Broadway sector.

Jack and Helen saw each other every night for weeks, and finally he asked her to marry him. Helen wore her engagement ring and a thrilled look everywhere she went, and to her happy friends she confided that she'd be a bride in three months.

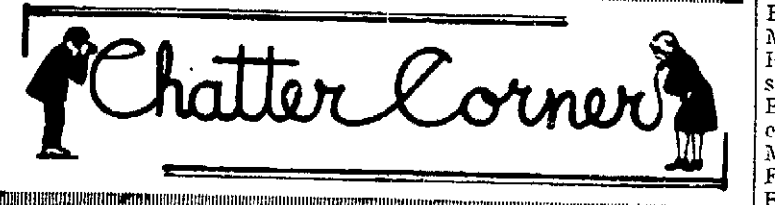

Well, the three months have gone by. They went by a long time ago. Jack keeps postponing the marriage—he's postponed it four times now—and Helen tries to tell herself it's all right, he must have a good reason, but she's unhappy and confused.

Jack has a good reason, all right.

The reason is named Joyce. She's a showgirl, and every night after Jack kisses Helen good-bye, he goes around to call for Joyce.

Joyce is very starry-eyed these nights, too. Because she's in love with Jack—and so happy that he's said he wants to marry her!

But you can't print that. There's supposed to be a broken heart for every light on Broadway. What's a couple more lights?

Rev. Grover C. Swayer leaving the Chamber of Commerce "victory dinner" to perform a marriage ceremony. . . . "Barney" Ford winning three prizes at the same session and declining the last two. . . . Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton with his fingers crossed while orchids were being awarded and then receiving the next to the last one. . . . Joseph Geiger and John S. Jones, winning the first two flowers awarded.

Mrs. Peter Mayer buying a new bird cage. . . . Mrs. Charles Fox leaving early in the morning for a day in Cleveland. . . . Kathryn Neiman having luncheon at a downtown restaurant. . . . Mrs. Clem Wehinger tired out after entertaining Thursday evening.

Bill (Michigan) Black obligingly playing Kiwanis song to tune of Ohio State's "Battlercry." . . . Vint Lodge going into a huddle with Harry Knox regarding the coming Purdue-Ohio State game. No bets made. . . . State Welfare Director Charles Sherwood meeting old Fremont friends among them Bunk Ross, during the Kiwanis meeting yesterday.

Dr. Hugh Wimbiger hoping that the stock will postpone any visits Saturday until after the Ohio State-Purdue game. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Harold Burns postcarding friends from Pennsylvania where they are vacationing. . . . Miss Helen Groman of Westinghouse volunteering her knitting services at the Red Cross offices. . . . Peg Black and Merrill Manz, the latter home on furlough from Fort Belvoir, upplanning to see the Ohio State-Purdue game.

Madison Faces Tricky, Unscouted Loudonville

Grimes Team Has Kept Surprise Plays Under Wraps All Season

By BUD SPRUNGER
(News-Journal Sports Writer)

MADISON'S RAMS move to Loudonville to meet Coach Leo Grimes' undefeated squad and their first encounter with the famed T formation.

Although using the T all season, the Grimesmen have not opened up with anything spectacular while they coasted through three easy wins and the Rams are apprehensive over what the Loudonville eleven may have under wraps.

Best preparation the Rams could make explained Coach Al Fendrick was to familiarize themselves with the new formation and its possibilities. But when it comes to particular plays and how they work they just don't know.

On the other hand, if the field should get wet—and the Loudonville field really gets wet when it rains—the advantage will go to Madison.

With Dick Bishop returning this week to his left tackle position and Spriesterbach returning to his center post the Rams line is going to be plenty rugged, Fendrick promises.

Joe Harfman is ready to fill in at tackle from the second string and with Stan Rinehart, 212-pounder, holding up the right tackle it's dubious if the Loudonville team could move the ball much on a damp field.

Right now Fendrick weighs in his entire team at 176 pounds average which is one of the heaviest starts Madison has made.

If, however, Loudonville has been laying for this game and the Rams think the Grimesmen have had a lot of time to prepare the timing and ball handling necessary to a good use of the fast moving T formation.

Furthermore, Ken Nouse in particular has demonstrated some exceptionally fine ball tossing even while his team was romping through easy opponents.

Probable starting lineups follow:

Madison	Loudonville
Fletcher.....	Darling
Bishop.....	Strouse
Batson.....	Correll
Spriesterbach.....	Pittenger
Keller.....	Hollinger
Rinehart.....	Kettinger
P. Wynn.....	W. Young
W. Wynn.....	Anthony
Anthony.....	Marletta
Garn.....	rh.....
Bell.....	fb.....
Nouse.....

With the backing of the Newark Boosters club, Ed Schrack, sports editor of the Newark Advocate, printed an open letter to the Newark school board and high school athletic association, declaring that it was unfair to the Newark Wildcats and coaches to ask them to play teams like Mansfield who have had the advantage of coaching from the seventh grade on.

The letter pointed out that Newark won two state basketball championships with teams developed by junior high football be started at Newark.

It's a good argument for Newark Boosters, but as a matter of fact none of Mansfield's present team had junior high coaching. That was started after they entered high school.

Schrack's letter brought out the fact that the entire Mansfield starting lineup was composed of seniors. That's just the thing that's worrying Mansfield right now. What about next year?

Just look at this year's Tiger team: Romano and Wimbler, ends; Arlin and Pecht, tackles; Smith, Weber and Timmons, guards; Dietzel, center; Doolittle, Condon, Krupp, Jones and Brandt, backs.

And senior subs include Daugherty, a back and Frankel and Maurer, linemen.

After the feast, will we have lean years? Because of those departing seniors?

Mansfield fans this season have been having a lot of fun watching the under-class subs battle when they got a chance in there. But those underclassmen are gaining the experience this year that will prove valuable next fall, and the outlook for 1942 isn't so bad.

Coach Snyder will have to find a tackle somewhere before next autumn, but a starting lineup is beginning to shape up pretty well at other positions.

There are Burrage and Lewis, ends; Birmelin, tackle; Goettie, Hetler, and Snyder, guards; Snowden, center; and Herrick, Boyce, Butler, Butterfield, Nameeth, Rachel, Sferro and McBride, backs.

Here's the Weekly Dream Session to Pick Winners

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Just a shot in the football dark (reserving the shot in the arm for Saturday night).

Northwestern-Michigan: The game of the week between two unbeaten, untied Western conference outfits. We'll take Northwestern but there are safer investments.

Navy-Cornell: And here's another one where somebody's perfect record will become fond memory. But the Tars seem to have so much scoring punch and so much material, this vote for Navy is almost automatic.

Texas Christian-Texas A. & M.: And still another one of the same class. Christian, thanks to Kyle Gillespie, has been winning the close ones. A. and M. has run up nearly 150 points in three games and hasn't been tested. This one ought to tell the story. The Aggies.

Columbia-Georgia: None tougher to figure. Columbia's unbeaten and untied, Georgia's been tied by Mississippi. This uncertain ballot goes to Georgia.

Villanova-Baylor: The Bears come north with one of the great backs of the year in Jack Wilson. The coin spins and says Baylor.

Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech: Vanderbilt to remain unbeaten. Minnesota-Pitt: Where's the adding machine? Minnesota.

Santa Clara-Michigan State: A long trip for Michigan State and a probable beating. Duke-Colgate: Looks safe for Duke.

Ohio State-Purdue: Could be trouble for the Buckeyes. Still, Ohio State.

Nebraska-Indiana: Nebraska. Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech: Should be only a workout for Notre Dame.

Penn-Princeton: Powerful Penn. Yale-Army: The nod goes to Yale.

Harvard-Dartmouth: Jumping on the Dartmouth bandwagon. Tennessee-Alabama: Out of the hat, Alabama.

Tulane-North Carolina: Tulane gets the nod. Wisconsin-Iowa: Iowa.

Oregon-California: Oregon. Washington-U. C. L. A.: Washington.

Southern California-Washington State: This vote, extremely doubtful, goes to Washington State.

Teams With Perfect Records Clash Here

Injured Wildcat Stars Reported In Condition For Crucial Tilt

TWO perfect records are placed on the line tonight at Stadium Field when Mansfield High's fast-traveling Tygers wage a jungle war on the Wildcats of Springfield high.

The game provides the first real test of the season for the Tygers who have rolled over four opponents for 142 points while keeping their own goal line untarnished by enemy boot tracks.

Springfield, in chalking up four straight victories without defeat, has scored 73 points, permitting one touchdown to the foe, marked up by Ironton.

The scores rolled up by Mansfield in defeating Akron West 40 to 0, Elyria 39 to 0, Sandusky 32 to 0 and Newark 31 to 0 are impressive enough in themselves, but Mansfield fans thus far have refused to be impressed by the opposition although any kind of victory over those same schools would have been welcomed in other years.

The question is asked: "Whom have the Tygers beaten?" or, as sport fans would be more apt to put it: "Who have they licked?"

Whether Springfield has defeated any tougher teams is a moot question. The Wildcats have won from Cincinnati Norwood 32 to 0, Columbus East 19 to 0, Ironton 13 to 6, and Dayton Silvers 9 to 0. But no one doubts that Springfield, with his big line and sensational aerial attack is strong enough to answer the question: "How Tough are the Tygers?"

Any kind of a victory for Mansfield tonight will send the Tygers against mighty Massillon next week on just about an even footing. Springfield has dreams of going through undefeated if it passes Mansfield successfully, and claiming a share of the state title.

By the time this story appears in print, the Springfield team should be in town, resting up for

TRAIN ASSURED

The special train for Mansfield football fans to the Massillon game next Friday was assured today. Sale of combination game and round-trip railroad tickets was well past the 300 mark needed to guarantee the train, officials of the Downtown Coaches association reported. Plans are going ahead for 1,000 passengers on a 15-car special train, however. With the guarantee reached, the ticket sale for the Massillon game is now thrown open and fans may purchase tickets with or without the train tickets at Tawse's pharmacy, Mansfield Athletic Supply, Central Drug, Brown's Drug, Yunker Sports, and at the high school, starting Saturday morning.

tonight's important battle. The Wildcats were scheduled to leave Springfield at 9 a. m. today for the 100-mile trip.

Coach Jim McDonald, the former Ohio State star, reported all of his players are in fine shape, with the injuries which benched five of them for the start of the Dayton Silvers game all healed up.

Tonight's game has been designated as "Dad's Day" and fathers of the Tygers will occupy a bench alongside the players, wearing numbers corresponding to those worn by their sons.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK — (The Special News Service) — Arkansas U., which admits being in the Southwest conference doghouse, is aiming to outdo the other six by signing up 1,500 volunteer coaches — at rates from $1 for end coaches to $25 for a that have you, to be a coach of the "twos." And then, says Drum Beater Johnnie Porter, "watch our fur fly."

TAKE-A-CHANCE, Dept.
Judging by last week's results, the best football pick this time would be to pick a seat in the last row and keep quiet. But with utter abandon we'll take Villanova over Baylor for tonight's shot in the dark and Navy over Cornell, Nebraska over Indiana, Northwestern over Michigan, Columbia for a long shot against Georgia, Duke over Colgate, Texas Christian over the Aggies and Santa Clara over Michigan State for the Saturday toughies. No questions, please.

GIVE HIM THE BIRD
Nile Kinnick, the last guy to beat the Gophers, was scouting Minnesota for Iowa Saturday. When he spotted Don Griffin, Illinois sophomore star, he remarked: "I know just how he feels. Going into your first conference game you can feel a flamingo fluttering in your stomach."

New Plays Expected At State

Bucks, Boilermakers Await Pigskin Tangle.

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS — (AP) — Purdue's Boilermakers and Ohio's Bucks, each with two weeks of secret and intensive training since appearing in the public eye, tangle tomorrow before some 72,000 fans in their opening Big Nine grid game.

Two weeks ago Purdue beat Pitt 6-0, and Ohio trampled Southern Cal 33 to 0, with enemy scouts taking voluminous notes. But, in the days since then, it's a safe bet that each squad has changed its offense and will have some mystifying maneuvers to present.

The Boilermakers, led by Coach Mal Eward headed into Columbus early today, but only for breakfast before going to nearby Magnolia Springs for a short afternoon workout. Then they will rest until starting for the stadium about noon tomorrow.

Ohio State, in tip-top physical condition, but with a mental attitude which has some of the coaching staff a bit worried, will practice only a few minutes this afternoon and then go to a country club for the night.

Purdue, if yams emanating from Lafayette are to be relied upon, has several cripples who will see little action, despite the two-week rest since the Pittsburgh contest. Fullback John Petty and Right Halfback Marion (Red) Carler are two of the invalids who may get into the game, but John Galvin, veteran left halfback, definitely is out.

Vincent (Rocky) Snyder, former Massillon high star, will replace Petty at fullback, with Tony Berio, veteran letterman, starting at right half, and Kenny Smock at left half. Smock, Quarterback Hayzyk and Center Bob (Iron Man) Johnson, are sophomores.

The Bucks and Boilermakers have met eight times, with the Ohio squad winning seven and losing one. Last year Ohio triumphed 17-14.

In the starting lineups will be four former Massillon high players, all coached by Paul E. Brown, who is making his first Big Nine start as mentor of the Buckeyes. The former Tigers with the Boilermakers are Snyder and Co-Captain-Guard Jim Miller, while Ohio will offer veteran End Charley Anderson and Sophomore Guard Lin Houston.

RACING BOARD TO HEAR 'RINGER' HORSE CHARGE

CHICAGO — (NS) — Maj. Ednyfed Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board, was expected to arrive in Chicago today to assume personal direction of the board's investigation of the "Ringer" case in which the thoroughbred Hasty Notion allegedly raced at Hawthorne Park under the name of Rapid Bone.

'WHITE HOPE' FIGHTER HUNTS STARTS TONIGHT

DETROIT — (NS) — Promoter Frank Barbaro's "White Hope" boxing tournament, which is designed to find a worthy challenger for Joe Louis, gets underway tonight.

Although 136 entries have been received, it was expected that no more than 30-odd fighters would participate in the opening session of three round bouts.

U. S. COURT HAS WHEAT TAX SUIT UNDER DEBATE

Studies Appeal of Mansfield
Company Seeking Refund of $9,500 Payment.

The U. S. circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati today had a case under advisement which involves an attempt by New York state to collect approximately $9,500 in government wheat processing taxes from the Hanley Milling company, Mansfield.

The case was argued before the court in Cincinnati Tuesday by Atty. C. H. Henkel and John C. O'Donnell, Mansfield, representing the milling company, and counsel appointed by the attorney general of New York state.

Atty. O'Donnell was admitted to practice by the federal court of appeals in time to participate in the case. His admission was authorized by the court on the motion of Atty. Henkel.

The Hanley Milling company appealed the case after a federal court in Cleveland ordered it to return the processing taxes paid by the state of New York on wheat which the Mansfield mills made into flour for New York state institutions.

Action against the Mansfield firm was taken after the processing tax was declared unconstitutional. Before the suit was heard, however, the Hanley company had turned the tax money over to the federal government and has been unable to get a refund, its counsel said.

Nest of Wasps Of Dinosaur Age Found In Utah

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The old riddle of the chicken and the egg now gives way to a new question: "Which came first, the bug or the blossom?"

The Smithsonian Institution revealed that an 80,000,000 year-old nest of wasps was found in southwestern Utah. The fossil dates back to the dinosaur age.

Technically, the Institution believes that the blossom was the first to originate. Discovery of the nest of wasps leads them to think that the flower and the pollen carrying insects evolved about the same time in a chance combination which has decided nature ever since.

Apparently the nest fell into mud which covered it forming a mold. The original material of the comb soon disappeared but the form remained. The mud was afterward bound together in an iron solution, resulting in a hard mass in which the form would be preserved for any length of time.

No remains of the builders of the nest were found. However, the nest was similar to the species that present day colonial wasps make.

HISTORY TURNS TO PHONOGRAPH

Indiana Teachers Record
History Making Speeches
For Future Use.

(By United Press)
TERRE HAUTE, Ind.—Adolf Hitler, Neville Chamberlain, Winston Churchill, and Benito Mussolini may serve as "lecturers" to history students studying this war, according to Dr. D. W. Morris, director of the speech department at Indiana State Teachers college.

Dr. Morris explained that Indiana teachers have experimented rather successfully with the use of phonograph recordings for teaching history in the classroom.

Excerpts from the speeches of dictators and the leaders of the democratic nations have been correlated on six phonograph disks to tell a step-by-step story of the rise of Hitler, his march into Poland, and the subsequent declarations of war, Dr. Morris said.

Although the records are complete with music, sound effects and dramatic explanation, Dr. Morris said that care was taken not to over-emotionalize the subject matter.

The original voices of all the leading public figures are heard, but Hitler and Mussolini are faded into the background to permit translations of their statements, and occasionally voices in carefully matched dialect give the speeches in English.

Dr. Morris believes that such records eventually will play an even more important role than motion pictures in history teaching of the future.

Indiana State Teachers college is considering plans for installing a circulating library of historical records for lending to schools throughout the state, he said. Since the beginning of the war crisis, Dr. Clarence Morgan, the school's director of radio, has been systematically recording important public speeches of European and American political leaders.

INNOVATION

Flying Lessons Made Simpler
By Use of Stovepipes.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. —(AP)—America's need for thousands of airplane pilots can be met partly by using stacks of stovepipes, according to Commander Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., glider enthusiast.

He has rigged up cheap versions of a wind tunnel and is giving them away. A glider is anchored in the windstream and, according to McDonald, an embryo pilot can learn the fundamentals by "flying" a few feet above the ground.

This "wind tunnel" is about 12 feet high. But instead of being hollow, it is packed with lengths of stovepipe through which the wind is driven.

The wind-makers are inexpensive old automobiles. The chassis is stripped and a large propeller is mounted on a pedestal in the rear. The blades are driven from the drive shaft.

MANSFIELD--City of Opportunity

To the apostles of despair who run for cover with each shift of the wind, we wish to present some facts to substantiate our claim that MANSFIELD is in as sound economic condition today as at any time in her colorful history.

MANSFIELD'S thriving industries are now employing 1,000 more workers than in the same period in 1937 which was an all-time high.

At the present time the payrolls of MANSFIELD has just been cut approximately 1000, still leaving a payroll of 11,780 as compared with 9,610 at the Recent local layoffs have in most instances affected employees recently employed and those living outside the city.

MANSFIELD industries are endeavoring to procure enough defense contracts to offset production curtailment resulting from priority limitations, and from present reports, will succeed in doing so.

Bank clearings are at an all-time high.

Again we say MANSFIELD is a city of OPPORTUNITY and is nationally known for its stable REAL ESTATE VALUES. For secure investment place your savings in MANSFIELD REAL ESTATE.

In buying or selling REAL ESTATE we recommend that you deal through a bonded REALTOR, who is a member of the local, state and national REAL ESTATE boards.

CAUSE WONDER

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La.—(UP)—The Corporals Madden, identical twins of Ames, Ia., have the first sergeant in a daze. The sergeant chews his pencil and glowers at the roster. Wilton was absent for reveille and Wilward was absent for retreat. Does that mean that one of them was absent without leave? "With those guys," growls first Sgt. Kenneth Powers, "you never know."

NICKELS NEEDED
DENVER—(UP)—Here's a tip to tourists. Bring along plenty of nickels when you come to Denver this summer. The city has installed 2,400 parking meters.

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO
Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balance of $300 or less and 3% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing due to pay. To apply—phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.
